THE COURT: Yes.

MR. EISENBERG: When we last spoke, the discussion was, how we would proceed with the Markman process from this point on. And we did communicate with the defendant's counsel. It is plaintiff's preference, if possible, to proceed before Your Honor. I think there are a number of reasons, and I don't want to get into a debate on why we think you would be the ideal person for us in this instance, but that is where we ended up. And we were hoping to discuss with you on the call today how we would schedule that, understanding that Your Honor has timing constraints in the upcoming couple of months.

THE COURT: Yes. Absolutely. No, reason to explain. You have your right to seek out the government official that you're entitled to see. But like going to the DMV, there may just be a long line. So, let's see what we can do about that. What is the expected timing on Markman here? Remind me, please. There are a couple going on. What do we say in terms of how much time I need to block out for the hearing?

MR. EISENBERG: So, there were a couple of different viewpoints on that. And I guess I will go through what the parties discussed the last time from my recollection. We would like to have a tutorial. The ask was at that time from defendant's counsel, could the tutorial be done a bit ahead of time of the Markman hearing? Either the prior day or possibly before that. And there was some discussion of whether that part Seoul Semiconductor Co. Ltd. v. Satco Products, Inc - 6/2/21 4 of it could be done remotely or in person.

So, that was one issue. And then the hearing itself, plaintiffs believe that that could be definitely done within a single day. Most likely, less than a day. I think the issues, there are fewer than the 25 that were joint briefed, and most of them are actually pretty simple grammatical issues. Not particularly complicated. I understand that defendant's counsel has a slightly different viewpoint, but that's where we are at this point. It's a short tutorial to help the court prepare and answer questions if necessary, and a hearing of a day or less.

THE COURT: Okay. So, you think two days will take care of everything, yes?

MR. EISENBERG: I do think so, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. Well, let me go to your adversaries and see what they have to say.

MR. BROWN: Your Honor, I agree that two days will take care of everything, absolutely. I think, frankly, you could probably get it done with a day and a half, a half day for the tutorial and a day for the claim construction hearing.

THE COURT: Okay. And if you'd like to explain some of the differences? I mean, your adversary said something about having to apply grammar, right? Which actually I'm better at that than I am say, with LED light bulbs or whatever else we're going to talk about. But what else do you see subject matter wise coming up?

Seoul Semiconductor Co. Ltd. v. Satco Products, Inc - 6/2/21

MR. BROWN: So, Your Honor, I agree that in claim construction grammar is always a part of it. But I also believe, as you suggested, that the LED technology does matter because you have to apply the grammar in the context of the LED technology. And frankly, my view is the grammar doesn't answer all the questions that you need to answer. So, I think you're going to need to have some understanding of the LED technology to address the claim construction questions.

THE COURT: All right. Now, I got this house, but I recently moved into a new home, so I have installed quite a few LED light bulbs. But I don't think that's really where you're going, I'm going to guess.

MR. BROWN: I think that's right, Your Honor. This is Nick Brown again. I think in this case, the technology is on a lower level than the light bulb level. It's more about how the LEDs that are inside the light bulbs are manufactured. And in some cases, how they're connected together electrically. So, it's a little bit of a lower level than the light bulb level.

THE COURT: Yeah, I'm guessing my ability to screw something in is probably not going to help that much. But anyway, I'm glad to hear it. All right. Good. Let's do this. Karen, can you tell me when you might have two days in a row free. And I'm going to say to counsel, I'm going to opt to do this in person, at least have the lawyers here. In other words, if you want to have an expert on the phone because they can't fly in from wherever, I get it. But we just had a totally

 2
    virtual proceeding yesterday that was so riddled with problems 3
    that I'd rather have you here if it's important. So, Karen, when are there two days clear that we can set this down for?
 4
 5
              LAW CLERK: July 19 and July 20.
              THE COURT: July 19 and 20? Okay. Counsel, does that 6
 7
    work for everyone?
 8
              MR. EISENBERG: Your Honor, I am sorry to report, and 9
    this is Michael Eisenberg again, as you're aware, the backlog of 10
    cases is starting to start up for trial. And I have a trial in LA that starts the 13^{th}, and it's likely to go to the 21^{st} or 11
    22^{nd}.
12
13
              THE COURT: Okay. When are you fully clear of that?
14
    When are we sure that will be done?
15
              MR. EISENBERG: The following week, actually. After that, I will be back in New York. And probably tired, but ready 16
17
            And this is obviously very important. For the court's 18
    purposes, I also have a trial starting September 21 also in 19
    California.
20
              THE COURT: Wait, wait. You blanked out a 21
    little bit. We lost you for a second when you said the date.
    What was the date of the second trial?
22
23
              MR. EISENBERG: September 21 in LA.
24
              THE COURT: All right. Karen, what else do we have?
25
              LAW CLERK: Monday, July 26.

Seoul Semiconductor Co. Ltd. v. Satco Products, Inc - 6/2/21
              THE COURT: Monday, July 26. Counsel?
1
 2
              MR. BROWN: Your Honor, this is Nick -- go ahead, 3
    Mike.
 4
              MR. EISENBERG: I was going to say, I can make that 5
    work. But, Mr. Brown, you may have a different view on that, so 6
    please go ahead.
 7
              MR. BROWN: So, that week the expert, who's testimony
 8
    we intend to present at the claim construction hearing, is in 9
    Europe the week of July 26.
10
              THE COURT: Wow. I can say that I haven't discussed a hearing in Europe. I don't think I'm allowed. Okay. Let's 11
12
    try, Karen. I know August is going to be a little hit and miss.
13
    Do you have anything open there?
14
              LAW CLERK: You want to try September 7?
15
              THE COURT: Oh, you had a trial starting September 1, 16
    yeah?
17
              MR. EISENBERG: Yes. Yes. That's me, Your Honor, Mr.
18
    Eisenberg, and I do. And that's cutting it a little close.
19
              THE COURT: Okay. So, will you be done mid-September?
20
              MR. EISENBERG: No, no. Late September, it starts the 21
    21st, and it's going to be one week trial out in California.
22
              THE COURT: Okay. Well, the good news is, the further 23
    we get away, the more openings I do have. Karen, how does 24
    October look for a few days? And counsel, I'm going to say this 25
    with the following caveat, we're trying fill things in as much as possible, but the wild card is, the criminal cases, as I explained, come first, and they're a bit undependable in the sense that, people plead out, people don't go forward, things change. For example, the first date didn't survive, or isn't available because at the last minute I had to sever some cases in the criminal case, making a July 5 trial shorter. So, it could move around a little bit. But Karen, what do we look like in October?

LAW CLERK: October 6?

THE COURT: October 6? That's early. Anything? Is that good for everybody?

MR. EISENBERG: I believe that should be fine for me, Your Honor. This is again Michael Eisenberg.

MR. BROWN: Your Honor, I believe that's fine for Satco as well. I'll be candid, I didn't get dates that far out from my expert, but it's far enough out that it should be fine.

THE COURT: Okay. Good. All right. So, let's set it then. October 6 and 7, we will do the hearing, then turn to the knotty issue of writing the opinion you want me to write afterwards with as much speed as we can bring to it. We'll do the best we can. All right? Good. So, what else do we have for today, if anything?

MR. EISENBERG: This is Mr. Eisenberg again. I am unaware of anything that we need to discuss on this call. Let me just briefly turn the mike to my colleague, Mr. Lahav, and
